

CAPABLE Family Study

Can you help us develop a program for people with early dementia and their family members?

Help us understand what it is like to live or assist someone with early dementia or mild cognitive impairment. This will help us in designing the best program to increase independence and achieve daily goals for all.

Study Participation

This study will create the program together with people who have early dementia or mild cognitive impairment and their family members, if family members are involved in their care.

Participants will provide input on what daily life is like and what kinds of activities would be most helpful in the program.

All communication would happen over the phone.

Study Eligibility

You may participate if you are over 60, do not live in a long-term care facility, have some difficulty with daily activities, and have some difficulty with your memory.

For More Information

Call the CAPABLE Family Study team at Johns Hopkins School of Nursing at 410-324-2511.

Primary Investigator:
Dr. Sarah Szanton
IRB00243117